Most children are kind, but some can be cruel. This can lead to bullying.

Cyber (electronic) bullying is a fast growing form of bullying, and can take many forms.

Around 90% of middle school students have had their feelings hurt online.

Parents and adults should monitor children's computer use to ensure they aren't being bullied, or bullying somebody.

There are tips to help protect you against cyber-bullying.

If you feel you issues regarding cyber-bullying, you should talk to someone about it – talk to a teacher/parent/friend/authority figure and support your child/friend.

School have bullying programs. Or you can access professional help organisations.
